Philip Cummings Gives the Turnkey a Hard Chase

BUT HE IS SOON RECAPTURED

A Lively Run Up Louis Street and Down Waterloo-A Tussie With the Sheriff on His Retura.

Philip Cummings, who is in the county jail under sentence of eighteen months at the Ionia nouse of correction for being implicated in the theit of J. C. Jones' watch, made a wild dash for liberty last night at about 6:30. Turnkey Barnes saw him as he passed out of the door leading to the first corrider and he started in pursuit. Cummings closed each door as he passed through it to impede the progress of Barnes, who was bindered in his chase by having to open them. The prisoner started on a Nancy Hanks gait up Louis street with the officer in bot pursuit. The fugitive turned down Waterioo street but had not gained much distance on the officer at that point. The chase was continued down Waterloo street with the officer shortening the distance between him and the prisoner at every step.

The Officer Caught Him, Cummings seeing that he was about to be caught ran into the basement of Ball & Waters' barn where the officer grabbed him just as he entered. He was returned to jail and locked up. The prisoners were all let out into the hall yesterday afternoon while the corridors were be ing scrubbed out. Cummings perched med on top of the iron grating surrounding the corridors and remained there until night. Officer Dougherty did not miss Cummings when he locked the prisoners in the corridors so he was left out all the afternoon. When Turnkey Barnes opened the door leading talo the corridor from the first floor Cummings slipped out and ran. When he was returned he acknowled to Sheriff McQueen that he made his escape in this way and was sheriff. The sheriff forced him back sgs just the steam pipes and Cummings' scalp was cut open by the fall. He whined like a cur but became very submissive. A physician was called in to dress his wound.

REAL ESTATE DEALERS. They Amend the Constitution and Elect Delegates.

The Grand Rapids Real Estate association held a meeting last night in Tuttle Brothers' office, with President Anderson in the chair and a quorum present. For some time past the association has been laboring under a misrepresentation of the constitution and will a by-laws, with reference to the number days. required for a quorum and no business C. W. It was decided last will address a prohibition meeting in night that five members of the associa- the Gaines town hall, Thursday evention and three members of the executive committee should constitute a quorum for the transaction of ordinary business, or ten members without the executive committee will be sufficient for the same purpose. The only im-portant business done last night was the election of representatives to the national real estate dealers congress, Lowell, candidate for county clerk, in which convenes in Buffalo October 4. The following delegates were elected: H. B. Huston, W. G. Tutsle, Abel T. Page, John C. Dunton, Fred S. Clark and Charles E. Mercer. The meeting adjourned to meet at the same place Monday evening, October 10, at 7:30.

CHAT WITH COLONEL BRIGGS.

He Talks of Veteran's Monuments and the Weaver Incident.

"People outside of the noble army of veterans who fought for the preservation of the Union from ,61 to '65 understand but little of the magnificent work being accomplished to perpetuate the memory of deceds of her-own and sacrifice in Pennsylvania. I have just returned from the regular annual meeting of the Sattlefield Memorial association at Pittsburg and am glad to say that the noble work of the association, is going on with full vigor and purpose" said Colonel Briggs to a reporler for THE HERALD Vesterday:

There are about 400 monuments erected, all of the loyal states being represented either as a state or by its different veteran organizations, and the spectacle is indeed a grand one."

Are there any particular evidences of superior pride being manifested by any of the states?

'No art" replied the colonel. "The feeling is a common one and equally as dear to me veteran or one state as another; but some state societies are better equipped financially than others, and that fact may be presented in the adornment of the battlefield accredited to such a state; but there is no rivalry, the endeavor is, as I stated, simply one of patriotic feeling and not

HELD UP AND ROBBED.

Charles Gifford Attacked on West Bridge

Street by Bold Highwaymen. Charles Gifford, a young man living with his parents at No. 45 Henry street and employed at Beaver & VanAuroy's meat market at No. 343 West Bridge street, reported to the police last might that he was held up and robbed on West Bridge street about 10 o'clock. He said he had started from the market for home and when he was midway between Pettibone and Michigan streets two men tushed up behind him. One of them threw around him, holding his hands in such a manner that he was powerless to defend himself, while his accomplice be gan to go through his pockets. He finally wrenched himself from their grasp and escaped up the street. When he arrived at headquarters he was greatly excited and trembing with fear. He found that three silver dollars had been taken from his trousers pockets, but a few bills which he carried in his watch pocket were still there. One side of his coat was torn nearly the whole length of the gar-ment in his efforts to extricate himself from the grasp of the highwaymen. He could not give a definite descrip tion of the robbers, but detectives were put to work on the case.

whether I could give a successful paychological account of their mental atritude toward their succeeding regimes, except by borrowing the words of one of their eleverest country women, Mme. Emile de Girardin: "When Marchal Soult is in the opposition he is acknowledged to have won the battle of Tou-louse; when he belongs to the government he is accused of having lost it." Since then the Americans have coined a word for that state of mind-"cussedness."-"An Englishman in Paris."

WOMAN'S WORLD IN PARAGRAPHS. Women Succeed in Business When They

Set Their Heads to It. That is a good story which is told of four women pioneers in the mining town of Creede. They are Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Love, Mrs. Beebe and Miss Anna Man. Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Love are widows with one child each. At the first rush to the Creede gold field Mrs. Miller went. She had been earning a living for herself and son by cooking and housework. She had heard marvelous tales of the wealth suddenly acquired in the new mining camps, and being a German weman believed them. American would have known better, but fortunately for Mrs. Miller's success she did not. She had to go in debt to a to Creede. Once there she looked over the field carefully and decided where the future growth of the town would be. This correct judgment was what made her fortune. She staked off several lots, opened a primitive sort of restaurant, and began to give the miners meal at fifty cents apiece. Her cash and en credit grew together. After it was s that she had hit it in her estimate of spot where the real estate boom w be, a lawyer, one of those who pre ct widows, tried to scare her out of her claim, even attempting to erect a house on the land. Mrs. Miller drew a revolver and informed him that she would blow the brains out of the first man that interfered with her property. The rough miners rushed to her rescue because she vous Debility, Impotency, Kheumatism, had given "many a man a meal when he and all nervous and other chrome dis was broke," and the man who tried to defraud her got out of that in a hurry. April, 1981, Mrs. Miller went in debt for money to take her to Creede. In April, 1892, she had an income of $500 a month from rents in the real estate she had so pluckily defended. Mrs. Love was supporting herself and child as bookkeeper in Pueblo, Colo., when the Creede boom began. She went there and opened a stationery store, which has been emi. stationery store, which has been emi-nently successful, besides getting possession also of valuable mining claims. Miss Anna Man has done the actual labor of digging a tunnel 200 feet long, and getting patents for two mines which are all her own. She can work a lode like an expert. Mrs. Beebe started the first large hotel in Creede-like Mrs. Miller, judging for herself where the business part of the town would be, and judging correctly. She has made a addition large mining properties. It is advancing their schemes, not recorded anywhere that Mrs. Miller and Mrs. Love are any the less capable and loving mothers because they are successful business women. The Hartranft family have had a great reunion at Mountain Grove, Pa. For the coming year they elected Frank Hartranft president, Judson Hartranft secretary and Dr. Chester Hartranft and Rev. H. C. Moyer historians. Are there no women in the Hartranft family? It is a comfort to know that at least one girl has done some thinking. Miss Victorine Jeans, of the Victoria university, who won the Cobden prize of $500 for the best essay on an economic subject, is a pretty young lady, as lovable and winsome as you would wish to see. Her prize essay bore the formidable title of "The Industrial and Commercial Effects, Actual and Prospective, of English Factory Act Legislation,"

Just at the time when the labor troubles were at their height during the summer I went up town in an elevated train in New York one day and sat next to two bright eyed, clean boys from thirteen to fifteen years old. They were evidently little fellows who did errands in down town offices. They were talking earnestly, and I soon discovered that they were discussing the strikes and their political bearings. They had read the story, had listened to the pros and cons and made up their minds decidedly about which side they were on. They knew more about the subject than half the grown men of average intelligence did. It gave me the greatest pleasure to listen to these bright, pretty lads. Then my thoughts turned to the girls of the same age, thirteen to fifteen. Where and when in my life did I ever hear two of them discussing the great questions of the time, in a car or anywhere else? A huge wave of discouragement rolled over my soul. My head came out above it, though. I wonder if before I die I shall ever find among average young girls any who know or care for anything but trash?

New York has a law requiring that women physicians shall be employed in all state institutions to which women are sent. Dr. Eveline T. Balantine has been appointed resident physician at the state hospital at Rochester. She got her appointment by passing the best competitive examination. She receives $1,200 a year and her living, which is not bad for a young lady just starting in the world. Dr. Balantine is a graduate of the medical school connected with the University of Michigan.

Rev. Dr. J. M. Buckley, who has made himself notorious by opposing the recognition of women as same human beings holds that the "adoption of woman suffrage would be the greatest blow that religion and morals have received in modern times." Of course we can un derstand from this that Rev. Dr. Buckley's own wife and mother have not good sense and good moral character, and therefore are not fit to vote, but he should not fall into the mistake of judging other mon's wives and mothers by his

A little while any I was talking to a beautiful girl of eighteen about a matter that was just then agitating the church to which she belonged. I remember I "If you think of it a moment you will see that this is so." She answered: "But I don't want to think. I just jog slong." I said to her then, I say to all like her: "God help you and forgive you! There will come a time in your life when you
